

HEALING

my own story

The life story of one extraordinary man

BY BILL PARFREY

Part One
Dedication

This book is dedicated to my mentor and good friend,
Professor George Canning.

To George - my Valued friend whose knowledge & help opened the door which I culminated in bringing this Book into being.

Thank you ever yours
George.

17/08/06

George

Part Four

ANN MOONEY went to a West Cork hotel and saw physical healer George Canning in action

MORE 'MIRACLES' THAN MEDJUGORJE

PEOPLE are flocking in their thousands to the Parkway Hotel in Dunmanway, Co. Cork, where Professor George Canning is providing special miracles. Some come with hope in their hearts. Many other have no hope at all.

Bill Parfrey is only one of many who feels that a serious quest for knowledge into the world of spirit will reveal, at least, some of the answers. Professor George Canning says he is neither a faith nor spiritual healer. He is a physical healer and the only therapist in Western Europe who has been trained in bio-energy healing by the world-famous Yugoslav Zdenko Domancic.

What is happening in the West Cork hotel is astounding to even the most hardened of sceptics. People have had their sight and hearing restored; back problems fixed, and all types, of ailments sorted out.

Even those who have a death sentence from cancer are being reprieved. People who arrived in wheel-chairs have walked out unaided.

But George Canning does not claim to be the new Messiah, nor does he take credit for his great powers.

He says his powers come from God and that he is the conductor of those powers.

"The power to heal is all around us and the healer can teach good people how to accept and use that power. Matter is made up of positive and negative forces and when these forces become unbalanced, illness results. I transmit energy to the area which needs healing and the ailment is cured," said Professor Canning.

No hypnosis

He rarely touches his patients, except when there is a need to improve circulation, but he does not hypnotise them either.

For his treatment, he makes a series of passes with his hands all around the patient's body with fingers fluttering and at times acting as if he is pulling something out, or throwing something away.

To the onlookers it all seems crazy, yet such is the need for some form of cure that they are willing to stay until their turn.

The movements occur while Professor Canning is working on the person's aura. This

Part Four

"I had all types of X-ray, cat-scans, etc., but the doctors could find nothing wrong with me. I heard about George through neighbours who had taken their child, who was suffering from severe eczema, and who was cured, and I decided to come to the clinic last September.

"I arrived prepared to wait to be seen complete with a book and sandwiches.

The first thing that astonished me was the fact that the clinic was an open one, but I sat down, and was absolutely amazed at what I saw. I was there for hours, but it never crossed my mind to open the book or eat the food.

"When I stood in front of George I told him about the loss of, energy and the ringing in my ears. He asked me if I knew my spine was twisted and I told him that the doctors had found nothing wrong with that area. He treated me and that weekend I found I had endless energy. I walked up mountains, cycled and ran to try and burn it out, and since then I have never looked back."

"I have seen absolutely amazing things happening here," said Bill.

I WOULD have thought he was comical - waving his arms and hands, hopping suddenly backwards and forwards, as if from electric shocks and nuzzling up close on his stool to his patients - If he hadn't such an intense concentrated look in his eyes.

That was when I first set eyes a week ago, on Cork Healer, Bill Parfrey in action - in a lounge bar function room, with soft background music playing and a large "SILENCE PLEASE" cardboard sign. Bill travels countrywide and is some performer to watch.

George Canning

But the tools of his trade are very portable - his hands and the energy he has derived from being a part of the psychic world for the past 30 years.

He is not, however, to be confused with a Faith Healer; "A faith healer is someone who says I believe or I don't believe against someone like me, who draws on my knowledge of God.

"God can be perceived as a man with a long beard, or a pulsating star, a vibration, a light, even a sound - and it is this awesome power that uses the nervous system of the healer to transmit energies to the patient to heal."

Energy

Bill believes therefore that the whole universe is made up of energy and when there is an imbalance between the positive and negative energy levels, then disease sets in. But wait a minute - we're not just talking on a physical level here. When you or I talk about our bodies - we mean, well, our flesh and blood, don't we?

But not Bill ...

For starters, his notion of the physical is this: "The body is made up of 80% water and 20% carbon and trace elements."

We also have an astral body and an etheric body, he explains.

And to illustrate this, he asked me to lift